PCs seem to be much more efficient than all other devices, but poor user experience is one of the causes of the failure of such systems. Users found it difficult to keep their data and get the best experience with their systems, and this is why they are looking for the best ways to get their data in time. The tools for the solution of such problems are given in this article. Flash and HTML5 - benefits and drawbacks Nowadays, most of the websites are designed with Flash, because it is much easier to use for developers than HTML5. However, it seems to be now a great challenge to switch from Flash to HTML5. The reason for the high popularity of Flash is that most of the websites use it to provide better user experience. It is important to understand that Flash is not a technology, but a technology framework. It provides possibilities to connect various kind of user experiences. The framework is built into the environment and is used to process and package content. It provides a visual interface between devices, and is responsible for the creation of applications and interactions with them. For the basic access to the Flash format, developers need special software and additional programming. However, it is possible to perform your own, if you are an expert in Flash programming. That is why nowadays, the Flash content is an indispensable part of the application. The new technology is HTML5, which is a cross-platform and open-source development tool. It is the successor of various desktop browsers that used to work properly with Flash. Therefore, the developers are trying to find the ways to replace Flash, but it still remains the most popular. Therefore, you need to be careful in the selection of the tools, because not all of them are 100% effective in Flash. Therefore, you need to find the best and proper solution for your Flash content. Ease of development The first and most important thing is the organization of the code. When the developers use HTML5, then it is much easier to work with. It is easy to define the structure of the files, and the code is easier to read. However, it is important to understand that HTML5 is not always perfect. Therefore, if you are developing your own Flash application, then it is easier to use it, because the code is more easy to understand, and it is applicable to all the HTML5 applications. Therefore, it is more flexible and saves your time. The Flash format is supported by the authoring tools, b7e8fdf5c8

What's New in the FlashShare Flash Optimizer?

FlashShare Flash Optimizer is a small Windows application designed specifically for helping you optimize your Flash files by reducing their size. The program's purpose is to provide a straightforward way for making your web pages load faster. You should take into consideration that it is able to process only Flash 3, 4, 5 and MX versions. Intuitive design The tool adopts a simple and clean design that reveals several details about each file added to the list, such as name, original and optimized size, ratio, Flash version, as well as file location. The Flash items can be added in the working environment using the browse button, so you cannot rely on the drag-and-drop support. Furthermore, you are given the freedom to remove the selected items or clear the entire list, select all files or invert selection, as well as make use of preset keyboard shortcuts for enabling several actions. Batch optimization mode FlashShare Flash Optimizer gives you the possibility to build up a list with the Flash files that you want to optimize. Using batch processing operations, you may select multiple items and reduce their size simultaneously. Performance Tests have shown that the utility carries out the optimization process very quickly and without errors. It manages to reduce the file size up to 50% without comprising your Flash quality. Bottom line To sum things up, FlashShare Flash Optimizer delivers a simple software solution for helping you cut down the size of your Flash files. The intuitive set of features makes this tool suitable for all types of users, regardless of their experience level. Adobe Flash Builder 4 allows you to build Flash applications in your browser, without the need for Flash authoring tools. You can use a WYSIWYG HTML editor for designing layouts, navigation bars and other basic components of the website, and then use Flash CS6 to convert these components into ActionScript. Flash is a multimedia authoring platform built for rich internet applications, game development and video streaming. It is most commonly associated with online animation, games, and videos on the web. The Flash runtime environment is a discontinued development platform (level 10) by Adobe for the development of multimedia applications. Flash Builder 4 is a free integrated development environment that allows you to create and edit Flash Builder projects on any platform (Windows, Mac and Linux), develop and run your Flash applications in the Flash runtime and publish them to a web server.
