

The Last Stand is a 3D first person survival shooter game made in Unreal Engine. The player's objective is to acquire artifacts while defeating robots who have invaded earth to prevent the end of the world. The game features 5 unique levels (18 levels total) created by the crew at nonPareil Institute. nonPareil Institute's mission is to help adults on the autism spectrum grow towards their potential by providing work readiness training integrated with hands-on technical instruction and social engagement opportunities. The game has many features including: Transcending current game trends: Single-player gameplay 3D graphics Multiple Differentiable Artifacts Different Weapons Takedown move: flip robot over Single-player game Unique Artifacts Brains, Bodies and Bots Level Design and game play The Last Stand features only one type of Artifact, a Chariot, and three different weapons: a melee weapon called a Whip, a Pistol, and a Shotgun. Progression through levels is unique. Each level has four slots for Artifacts, one for each Weapon. Artifacts can be used to win the level or can be traded for Bullet Rounds. The last Artifact is the Boomerang, and is the only Artifact that doesn't return to the player (you are given a special Boomerang artifact). The first three levels all require the Boomerang for the level to be completed, and the fourth level (the final level) requires a Boomerang at the end of the level. There are 18 levels in the game. Each level is rated on an A to F scale based on difficulty. The scale is based on the number of robots and the level of player interaction with the robots. If the player does not use any special abilities (the Unlock Ability button), the level can be completed in no more than 90 seconds. Otherwise, the number of available artifacts and the player's own efficiency in dealing with the robots determine the time it takes to complete the level. The overall goal in each level is to acquire 4 Artifacts and win the level. If a level is won, the player is awarded an achievement. There are 18 achievements in the game. Artifacts The artifacts in The Last Stand are: Chariot: able to be used to score the most points in a level. After the Boomerang is acquired, it is "locked" at the end of the level, and cannot be traded for anything. The Chariot can

Gems of Fate: the Charmed King is a fan made sequel to the older computer games previously released. The game was developed by JFEI.SET.P which is the same company that created the Game Arts Charmed series. The game was only released for the Japanese market. The game has the same story as the Game Arts series but is a separate game that picks up right after the events of Charmed Masters: The Capture. After the events of the last game, Alex and Damon have just witnessed the deaths of Elena and Damon and their departure to a different world. After a brief but difficult recovery, Elena is confronted with a dangerous force who she must defeat and save her life. Plot While Alex and Damon are on their way to a safer home where they can start an easier life, they are ambushed by a pair of vampires and are saved by a little boy named Luke who gives them a ride on his magical flying carpet. Arriving in the magical world, they soon notice that it appears to be identical to the real world. Enraged at the vampire attack, Alex is told by a mysterious woman named Amelia that they have only just begun to face what they need to do for the safety of the magical world. While hidden in the shadows of the magical world, the group is joined by Luke, Chloe, and the mysterious figure that Amelia has mentioned. Near the end of the game, Amelia and Luke allude to the legendary and mythical figure of King Alpha. In his story, a young man named Loane and a girl named Sharon first meets their enemy. During their battle, Loane calls out the "King" and battles him, he transforms Loane into the Charmed King.
