So below we arrive at Medal of Honor 2010, a game that completely followed the footsteps of WWII FPS games to win the combat and public's heart. There were a lot of improvements over its 2009 predecessor. It includes an online co-op, multiple levels to play, extended firefights, more realistic modern weapon mechanics, and new multiplayer game modes. The game boasts of its strict in-game ranking system and help forums, which are not so present in the earlier games. So do not be thrown away if you encounter any issues while playing the game, as we will try to resolve them for you. We have been doing a ton of beta and alpha testing on the new Medal of Honor for the past 4 or 5 months and it has been a really incredible time. I have been a beta tester for Call of Duty 4, Battlefield 2, Battlefield Bad Company, Medal of Honor, Medal of Honor Airborne, and a few others. I have seen a ton of patches and changes happen and all of them have to be balanced or changed around. A lot of stuff that you have to be aware of when you are playing. It's been a lot of fun, but now it is time to launch. Software problems would make an uncomfortable experience. I don't see the latest update for Medal of Honor on the list that you posted. I think I'll be walking around the store and ask people, "Has anyone played Medal of Honor? What's your experience? If you haven't played it, how would you suggest I start?" My plan is to hear as much of it as possible before I order. There is not much I can really say about the beta, there are a couple of things that I noticed that weren't really mentioned in my review. One of which is that you only have 6 classes for multiplayer.
