Daft Punk - Random Access Memories (2013) [Japan Deluxe Edition] [PATCHED]

to accompany the japanese release of random access memories, daft punk has unveiled a bonus track in the form of horizon. the technodreamy dance aesthetics of the album havebeen put on slight hold in favor of a smooth, mellow lullaby, creating a serene track in which daft punk flexes their penchant for synth layers. the track seems built for rare moments of introspection, not unlike sitting in a guiet park in the middle of a bustling metropolis. enjoy horizon in the stream below, while random access memories in full can be purchased here. of the tracks on discovery, some did not make the final cut of the album including its title track, daft punk, which was meant to be released as a single. only two songs, one more time and da funk, made it into the final track listing. a demo of one more time was leaked to the internet in 2000, and some of its lyrics are featured on its official release. the song's lyrics were also featured in the credits of tron: legacy in 2010. random access memories is the ninth album by french electropop duo daft punk. it was released on 28 may 2013 by columbia records. the album is the duo's first after a five-year hiatus. it is also their first album since 2007's human after all. it was self-produced by the duo and features a variety of genres. in the us, random access memories debuted at number one on the billboard 200 with first-week sales of 187,000 copies, becoming daft punk's first us number-one album. it also debuted at number one in australia, belgium, canada, france, germany, ireland, the netherlands, new zealand, the uk and the us. in the months leading up to the release of discovery, he and his partners were working on the album at the sonora studios in cologne, germany. the project started in 2005 after daft punk gained much support from the video game prodigy and its collaborators eric's trippin' and edm-music.com. he began composing with bangalter over the summer of 2006 and finished his composition in march 2007. once the song was complete, he thought about releasing it on the soundtrack of da vinci code, but they felt it was better as a standalone. [10] dance music is tough. there are too many subgenres, too many groups and too many styles to keep up with. the closest thing to a top-shelf dance duo in the past five years has been swedish group disclosure, whose 2014 single magnificent and 2015 ep omen sold over a million records each and lit up blogs from the uk to japan. but a few groups stand out for their level of craft: daft punk, the french electronic group who dominated the dance charts in the nineties; tinie tempah, a british rapper who has reinvented himself as a dance artist over the last year; disclosure, the zhu-produced duo who have been instrumental in the growth of the genre; and swedish house mafia, the live-set superelite whose mixtapes have sold millions at edm festivals. among these groups, daft punk is the most acclaimed. "they're a supergroup," says tia fuller, editor of exclaim!, a canadian dance publication. "they've been doing this type of stuff for 14 years, and they're still not tired." 5ec8ef588b
