Having a limited time at hand, the programmer decided to write Surf It! in a very short time. The application is a multi-tabbed browser that will let you bookmark your favorite sites, add sites to the favorites folder, go to the bookmarks, and browse through your PC with ease. The application is simple, without many flashy and user-unfriendly features, so you don't have to download and install third-party plug-ins to use it. There are only four tabs that will provide different options, and it is the fastest and most convenient choice to surf through a variety of websites. You don't have to mess with different options to find a particular site, but by having your main location displayed, you may easily access any website you want. What's interesting, Surf It! has a very simple and light-weight interface that will run on your Windows 7, Windows 8.1, and Windows 10. But still, if you use it with other browsers, you will have to go through the same instructions as with any other tool. By the way, Surf It! is not a standalone application. It is a part of the Axiom Web Browser, so you will need to install it in order to use it. Click on the Start button and select the Axiom Web Browser option from the list that will show up. Next, click on the Surf It! option and then drag it to the screen. Enjoy surfing the Internet as you want! The program offers everything you need to operate in the world of Linux: servers, managing torrents, create a cloud storage and a password manager. The required space of the program depends on the applications that you want to install. Therefore, the first choice is the number of Linux server applications. The minimum of required space is 10 MB, but the maximum will depend on the applications. 2. How to Create a Password for Linux Server The program allows you to create a new password that will be used to secure the system of the Linux server. The size of the password depends on the number of characters, but it is not limited. 3. How to Setup your Cloud Server on Linux Linux is a cloud operating system. It is great to create a cloud storage that will store various important files that you will need on a daily basis. Firstly, you have to install the Linux server application on your system. If you want to make it the default cloud server, click on the
