This proposal describes a five year training program for the development of an academic career in Pediatric Gastroenterology at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. The candidate is being trained by Dr. Scott Weaver, Chairman of the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, in an academic environment that facilitates a personalized training experience. The proposed research plan outlines an intensive experimental study of gastrointestinal development in a recently described model of post-natal FGF receptor deficiency (lopo-dysplasia) in the rat. Morphologic, histologic, and functional characterization will be performed on the intestinal epithelium and smooth muscle at various times after birth in this system. The proposed research will provide a unique opportunity for the candidate to delineate the role of FGF receptor signaling in intestinal development, and will provide a model for future investigations into early developmental defects. This training and research experience will provide the future physician with a foundation for further investigation of the pathophysiologic basis of many gastrointestinal disorders. The Central Component of this proposal is a scientific development plan, which has been completed at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and will be completed within the first year of the award. The clinical component consists of a research plan involving characterization of the intestinal epithelium and smooth muscle in lopodysplasia. This will be performed following the completion of the scientific development plan in the first year. A period of independent funding for the remaining three years of the award will be sought in order to complete the final experimental portion of the research plan, and will ultimately be mentored by Dr. Robert Littman in New York City.
